

Pre-Conference Workshop 1

Date & Time: Oct. 22 (Tue), 14:00-17:00

Venue: Room 215

Host:  연세대학교 의료법윤리학연구원 ASIAN INSTITUTE FOR BIOETHICS AND HEALTH LAW YONSEI UNIVERSITY Asian Institute for Bioethics and Health Law (AIBHL), Yonsei University

Topic: Health Law and Ethics

Title: Comparison of no-fault compensation systems in obstetrics and gynecology (Korea, Japan, Taiwan)

Chair	Kiljun Park (Professor Emeritus, Yonsei University, Korea) Sunghun Na (Professor, Kangwon National University Hospital, Korea)
Workshop 1. a	Sang Hyun Kim (Research professor, Graduate School of Public Health, Yonsei University, Korea) The Korean compensation system for irresistible medical accidents in obstetrics
Workshop 1. b	Kyungnoh Lee (Professor, Chungnam National University Hospital, Korea) Medical policy implications of survey results of Korean medical students and residents
Workshop 1. c	Tadashi Kimura (Chairperson, Sakai City Hospital Organization, Japan) The Japanese compensation system for cerebral palsy
Workshop 1. d	Tai-Ho HUNG (Chang Gung Memorial Hospital, International Medical Center, Taiwan) The childbirth accident relief system in Taiwan
Q&A	Wook Jang (Research professor, Graduate School of Public Health, Yonsei University, Korea)

Abstract

If a fetus that did not have any abnormalities during prenatal examination develops a disability such as cerebral palsy during birth due to amniotic fluid embolism, placenta previa, etc., the responsibility cannot be placed solely on the medical personnel in charge of the birth, and the mother must bear the cost of supporting the child for the rest of her life. It's hard to handle. If these cases end up in litigation, it takes a lot of time, it is difficult to determine whose fault it is, and if the medical institution has to compensate for huge costs, there may be cases where the medical institution refuses to give birth.

In the case of Korea, with the establishment of the Korea Medical Dispute Mediation and Arbitration Agency 10 years ago, a system was introduced to compensate a certain amount in cases of no-fault, but recently, in an effort to supplement this system, a direction for development was presented by comparing the systems of Japan and Taiwan. I want to do it